

BIGORANGE FIELD GUIDE

Custom Home Builder Marketing Readiness Checklist

Find the next right fix before adding another campaign, page, or tool.

Positioning

- ☐ The first screen names the builder type, market, project fit, and next step.
- ☐ The message explains a visible operating difference.
- ☐ The site helps a wrong-fit prospect self-select respectfully.
- ☐ The sales conversation and website make the same promise.

Website and proof

- ☐ Selected projects explain the goal, constraint, decision, and builder role.
- ☐ Every public review, result, and project detail has an approved source.
- ☐ The process shows major decisions and communication expectations.
- ☐ Team, market, project-fit, and CTA information is current.

Search, local, and AI visibility

- ☐ Each audience need has one primary URL.
- ☐ Titles, headings, links, image alternatives, canonicals, sitemaps, and schema agree.
- ☐ Market content reflects real local expertise.
- ☐ Important answers are direct, current, attributable, and supportable.

Content system

- ☐ The next 90 days map to real buyer and sales questions.
- ☐ Every asset has a job, source, owner, reviewer, CTA, and link destination.
- ☐ Interviews separate publishable facts from confidential material.
- ☐ AI-assisted drafts retain source notes and human fact checking.

Mobile, accessibility, and performance

- ☐ The page is usable on a phone without horizontal scrolling or a long blank state.
- ☐ Images are correctly sized and below-the-fold media lazy-loads.
- ☐ Keyboard focus, contrast, headings, labels, links, alternatives, and iframe titles are verified.
- ☐ Console errors, unused scripts, render-blocking resources, and third parties are reviewed.

Measurement and lead quality

- ☐ Analytics, booking, forms, calls, consent, CRM, and sales use agreed definitions.
- ☐ Primary CTAs use consistent events and test activity is excluded.
- ☐ The scorecard includes consultation fit and sales acceptance.
- ☐ Conversion reporting stays pending until the complete path is verified.
